All Aspects of Its Culture and Raised It in One of Dryest Treatment Will Be Shown at Fair

C. E. Koontz, principal of the Agri cultural High School, at Burkeville, This is regarded as remarkable, in and the resources of two continents have been ransacked to make it sec-ond to none. Its existence has been ond to none. Its existence has been kept quiet until the present moment. The exhibit will contain a digest of the history of alfalfa growing. It will have specimens of perhaps forty different varieties of the plant, from all parts of the globe. The growth will be shown at various riages, and its development will be traced from the seed to the final result. Even in this year of drought, Mr. Koontx has learned of one yield of five tons to the acre year of dropath and the tons to the acre from three cuttings.

Inasmuch as securing seed is im-practicable in this State, advice is practicable in this State, advice is given as to selection.

Among the subjects treated are history, planting, inoculation, methods, cutting, curing, storing and hay, feeding value compared with other feeds, common diseases and what can be told by the color of alfalfa. Some Virginia acre yields are shown, and the varieties are exhibited in pot culture.

The idea has been to demonstrate everything which the grower should know about this feed. It is a subject in which the people of Virginia are becoming greatly interested.

MAYOR'S CABINET

Systematic Inspection of Departments of City Government Is Being Made.

Is Being Made.

Members of the Mayor's Cabinet were the guests of Chief Health Officer E. C. Levy yesterday afternoon in an inspection of the Health Department at the City Hall. The cabinet is making a systematic tour of inspection of the more important departments of the city with a view of familiarizing the various officials with the work and peculiar problems with which all have to contend. It was agreed that by such interchange of information the best plan of mutual co-operation could be inaugurated. Dr. Levy explained in some detail the system of operation of his office, members of the cabinet taking special interest in the wall charts and maps showing the location and number of all cases of contagious diseases, and the number and location and causes of deaths in the city during the year. Comparative figures for the various diseases and comparative death statistics, with information as to the purification of the milk supply, sanitary inspection of premises, and other efforts of the Health Department to lower the merusity rate and provide more healthful conditions were explained. Members of the cabinet expressed the highest approval of the systematic and efficient menner in which the department is being conducted.

MOST REMARKABLE HAS 163 BUSHELS

Counties in Year of Drought. Record May Be Broken.

Demonstration Agent T. O. Sandy has found that one boy has made a yield of 163 bushels on his acre. The name view of the summer-long drough which cut down crops in every quar ter. The boy referred to lives in one of the counties where practically no rain fell while the corn was making.

There may, of course, be others who will pass that figure.

Last year a Dinwiddie County boy raised 167 bushels on his acre of ground, this being the State record to this time. It may be surpassed in 1912, in spite of the most serious drought known in years.

Taking it all in all, Mr. Sandy asserts that the farm exhibits at the State Fair will constitute the best showing of Virginia agriculural results and possibilities ever assembled in this State. It is a revelation even to him.

PATRON'S DAY AT WAKEFIELD.

Large Crowd Attends Interesting Excretes at High School.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Wakefield, Va., October 4.—The Wakefield High School observed Patrons Day here to-day with a large crowd of patrons in attendance. This morning there were addresses by Professor J. H. Binford, of the Co-operative Education Association, and by Superintendent Edwards and Professor Lincoln, of the high school, while a splendid entertainment was rendered by the children of the primary grade, under the direction of Miss Brent. The School Improvement League served dinner on the grounds, and in the afternoon there was a debate by the high school pupils and a ball game between Wakefield and Dendron. The school league, under the presidency of Mrs. J. W. Presson, is in a flourishing condition, and will undertake much work for the improvement of the school during the present session.
